

Saltash Environmental Action

Saltash Environmental Action (SEA) is a community-based organisation who undertake a wide array of environmental activities encouraging education and action in our community.

What they say about themselves...

“We are passionate people working together for a world where we all share responsibility for the future wellbeing of our planet and ourselves.”

Due to the urgent situation regarding the Climate Emergency and the urgent need for change at a local government level, SEA approached the council for a representative on their group.

These are just some of the areas they are involved:

- Litterpicks to protect our local paths and public areas
- Education around environment and climate change including talks and film nights
- Tackling plastic-free agenda with local businesses and community groups – Saltash Library and STC has taken the plastic-free pledge
- Encouraging wildlife and planting especially trees
- Reducing energy consumption
- Sustainable living such as buying locally

A new initiative will be a campaign being launched in April around cigarette butts and the issues with the careless disposal of them in the environment.

SEA are also members of the newly formed Climate Change Working Party on STC. We welcome their input and expertise.

Councillor Sarah Martin