

Saltash Town Council goes green for valentine's day!

Saltash Town Council and the Saltash Library are going green for Valentine's day this year to show we care about climate change.

The Saltash Library will be running a workshop on Saturday 12 February between 10.30 and 12.30pm where you can create your own green heart and show your support for tackling climate change.

The green heart campaign is an idea created by the Climate Coalition to enable people to show everyone that they care about the climate change and the need for rapid action to tackle the crisis.

Saltash Town Council is committed to going green and is making changes to be an environmentally friendly Council. Changes such as more wildflower areas in the town and using less plastic are already being implemented.
